Remarks

1. Improving reaction will occur during the course of treatment and must not be mistaken for side effects. Improving reaction proves that the body is actually responding to the treatment and thus improving. After the reaction, our immune system will naturally be strengthened to help our body against any illnesses without the aid of medication.
2. Remember to drink a lot of water when you experience an improving reaction. This helps our body's metabolism and will reduce the reaction time length.
3. As every individual's condition and symptom is different, the same will also apply to the reaction experienced. Some might experience two or more reaction at any given time or separated over a period of time. Please refer to the list above for possible symptoms to the reaction.
